

Practice Profile

Charlotte prosecutes and defends serious and organised crime, often with an international element, for which she has received commendations from Europol and the Metropolitan Police. Charlotte was appointed Treasury Counsel Monitree in April 2024.

She quickly earns the trust of vulnerable clients and scared or reluctant witnesses, as well as the confidence of instructing lawyers and police officers, including those from other jurisdictions, and has been praised by the National Crime Agency for her guidance offered to case teams, particularly those including less-experienced officers.

Charlotte has expertise in the management of complex disclosure across paper-heavy frauds and sensitive matters, and has delivered training to the CPS on "Prosecuting International and Organised Crime: Pitfalls and Protocols in Disclosure".

Recently she has specialised in 'romance' frauds, involving the use of false identities on dating apps to target vulnerable victims, who are often reluctant to support a prosecution due to shame or embarrassment, and the laundering of significant sums of money in multiple countries.

Charlotte has a particular interest in cases involving complex scientific evidence, holding a Diploma in Forensic Medical Sciences.

Current instructions include: investigations by the Flying Squad and the NCA, and cases prosecuted by the CPS Complex Casework Unit, Homicide Unit, and Serious Economic, Organised Crime and International Directorate (SEOCID), as well as private instructions to defend in cases of sexual assault and stalking.

Family OCG Guilty of 1 Tonne Cocaine Conspiracy

28 April 2025

Charlotte Hole and Sam Willis prosecuted a family of drug traffickers responsible for moving at least one tonne of cocaine from ports in the South East to towns and cities across the UK.

Headed up by grandmother Deborah Mason, self-described as 'Gangster Debbs' and saved in another defendant's phone as 'Queen Bee', the close-knit group of nine defendants were responsible for collecting up to 60 1kg blocks of cocaine at a time from the Harwich / Colchester area, and then delivering them to serious organised crime groups in Rotherham, Bradford, Leicester, Birmingham, Bristol and Cardiff for onward supply. Around 55 individual trips were made by the group during 2023, each trip involving multiple drug drops or cash collections, amounting to around a tonne of cocaine in total.

The trial of eight of the defendants at Woolwich Crown Court concluded this week, and involved the presentation of cell site and ANPR mapping, surveillance evidence, and a schedule of 7,500 messages exchanged between the defendants revealing the inner workings of the conspiracy.

Two of the defendants pleaded guilty during the trial and six were convicted by the jury. One defendant had already pleaded guilty at an earlier stage in the proceedings.

Charlotte and Sam were instructed by Rob Hutchinson of the CPS Complex Casework Unit.

Appointments to Treasury Counsel Monitree

12 March 2024

Chambers is delighted to announce that Charlotte Hole and Frederick Hookway have been appointed by Robert Courts KC MP HM Solicitor General, to the Treasury Counsel Monitree scheme from 1st April 2024, for a period of 3 years.

Chambers congratulate them both on the professional achievement that this appointment represents.

OCG who Acquired a Gun to Protect their Class A Drug Dealing Business Convicted

19 February 2024

Charlotte Hole, leading Anna Dutka, secured convictions against all 5 defendants in this conspiracy to supply Class A drugs. The defendants were members of an Organised Crime Group running a drug line which supplied heroin and crack cocaine across Tower Hamlets, and had agreed to possess a firearm and ammunition to protect their drug dealing business.

Instructed by Harminder Cheema of CPS London North East Crown Court Unit.

Containers filled with 270kg of cocaine, 2,500kg of cannabis and 18.6m cigarettes

15 December 2023

Charlotte Hole and Sam Willis prosecuted two importers for bringing into the UK 270 kilograms of cocaine, 2.5 tonnes of cannabis and 18.6 million duty-free cigarettes, all hidden inside shipping containers. Valued at £24m, the drugs had been vacuum-packed and then secreted inside crates of animal feed, yams and oranges. The cigarettes were concealed in a similar manner, hidden inside crates of snack food, coconut fibre and biscuits - the tax that should have been paid on them if imported lawfully totalled just over £9m.

The case followed an extensive investigation by the South West Regional Organised Crime Unit, who became involved when a farmer discovered 189kg of cocaine in a shipping container full of animal feed. The defendants had unsuccessfully tried to divert the container to their warehouse in London so that the drugs could be removed before the container reached the farm.

During the 16-week trial, the conspiracy was evidenced using material from numerous encrypted communications services. The jury heard technical evidence involving cell site analysis, VPN services, and IP address resolution.

Charlotte and Sam were instructed by the CPS Serious Economic, Organised Crime and International Directorate (SEOCID).

OCG prosecuted for spree of commercial burglaries

22 June 2023

Following an eight-week trial at Croydon Crown Court, eight members of an organised crime group have been sentenced for their involvement in a spree of commercial burglaries across London. Prosecuted by Charlotte Hole and Sam Willis, the group targeted bookmakers and other shops, typically breaking in during the night using sledgehammers. In total they carried out 12 burglaries of commercial premises, and a robbery at a cash and carry, over a period of 4 years. They stole tens of thousands of pounds in cash, and caused hundreds of thousands of pounds worth of damage to buildings, security systems, and businesses. The robbery involved a staff member of the cash and carry being assaulted and then bound hand and foot with cable ties whilst others sought to enter the building.

Ladders and tools were used to scale walls and breach roofs or walls of premises to gain access to the area where a safe was located. They then either removed or broke into the safe to steal cash, using hand tools and angle grinders. CCTV cameras were destroyed or blacked out, or the hard drives removed altogether as forensic countermeasures, and alarm systems were destroyed or the cables and power supply were cut, in an attempt to avoid detection.

Investigated by the Flying Squad, the evidence against the eight defendants included CCTV, covert surveillance, forensics, mobile telephone downloads, and cell site mapping.

Charlotte and Sam were instructed by the CPS Complex Casework Unit.
